

I feel any regulation to limit the road condition and traffic reports on XM Satellite Radio and or any other service is wrong. When and where traffic safety is concerned I believe every available means of message conveyance should be used and promoted. Any attempt at the limitation of these services by one radio service biased group is only an attempt to control markets and should not be allowed. These attempts would seem to be an infringement of first ammendment rights and should not even be considered by the government. In business may the strong survive! Radio had held on to their market a long time now that another provider is starting to cut into their profits they start trouble and begin to whine. The radio stations should develop new ways to gain and hold their market share, keep up with current technology and the times. I would hate to be involved in a traffic accident that could have been prevented get injured and have to sue the radio stations and the NAB for withholding information ( which is what they are doing if they limit the satellite radio presentations of traffic info) for damages.

Too much government regulation is the down fall of common sense and values of people today. We expect the government to do everything for us .....I prefer to make my own decisions and use my own brain!

Thank you

Doug